General Comments

A renewal inspection was conducted during both the morning and afternoon.

Upon arrival, children were observed engaged in indoor play. Shortly thereafter, they transitioned outdoors to the fenced play area. During outdoor play, children were observed riding bicycles and ride-on toys, jumping and tossing leaves, reading books, playing on hoppy balls, and engaging in imaginative play within the playhouse. Educators were actively engaged with the children, supporting and extending their play and learning experiences.

Within the indoor environment, documentation and displays highlighted activities in which the children had recently participated. These included learning experiences focused on fall themes, such as leaves and pumpkins; creating artwork using leaves; and exploring the interior of pumpkins. Additional activities included water play with colored water and bubbles, as well as a sensory exploration tray containing seasonal materials such as pumpkins, acorns, leaves, and flowers.

During lunch, educators were observed seated with the children, engaging them in meaningful conversations and providing assistance as needed.

Child-to-staff ratios and supervision requirements were observed to be maintained and respected throughout indoor play, outdoor play, and nap/quiet time.

All staff files were reviewed and verified to contain the required documentation.

A random sample of children's files was reviewed and verified to contain all required documentation.

Discussions took place between the Administrator and Inspector regarding recent changes to legislation and regulatory requirements.

Educators were observed consistently using positive child guidance practices in their interactions with the children.
