General Comments

Licensing staff arrived at the facility at the same time as the school bus. The operator met the bus and counted the children as they exited the bus. The children put their bookbags in their cubbies and then went outside to play. There is a fenced in play area with a climbing dome with pea gravel beneath, a playhouse, picnic table where they do crafts that they have brought out, and a wooded area that they call the Wood City where then children can also play. One teacher supervises the fenced in area and the other teacher the wooded area. The children are building elaborate forts in the wooded area, they have a market space, they put up signs to create streets, they have an area to perform plays, and they have 6 hammocks that the children can rest or swing in.

After an hour or so of outside play the children went inside for snack and tabletop activities. A volunteer came in to teach and play chess with some of the children. They are inventing games with the clay figures that they have built and some of the children are putting sea creatures in water where they expand and they are creating aquariums with boxes and paper and paint. The class was very active and there were numerous activities happening and the children were helping to create the daily curriculum.

Staff files were verified, all the postings were on the parent board, and all administrative tasks are being completed, maintenance checks, fire drills etc. The operator and her staff have a great rapport with the children, and they are very engaged in their activities and interested in their conversations. All child guidance was positive and pro-active.
