General Comments

When licensing staff arrived, the program was outside playing in the outdoor play area. Fewer children were in attendance as it was a PD day. Two children were sitting at a picnic table playing chess and the other children were playing throughout the play space or creating with a selection of beads, pompoms, googly eyes and various art materials. The educator gave reminders of the transition to inside at 10, 5, 3, 2, and 1 minute time intervals with the reminder to gather their belongings and clean-up before going inside for lunch. Once children lined up, the educator counted all the children and re-counted twice more before entering their space. Children changed out of outdoor shoes, got their lunch bags, and went to the washroom to wash their hands before sitting to eat. The educator sat with the children as they ate after heating up any food items and checking if they needed any utensils.

Once children were finished and washed their hands. they started to gather supplies for indoor play. Some children set up barriers to play ball, while others got a glue gun and materials to create collages. One child invited a friend to make a scene with modelling clay. The educator checked with children if they were familiar with using the glue gun by asking if they had used one at school to ensure they were following safety procedures.

The facility recently opened and includes two large rooms for school-age children. There was a variety of resources available throughout the space and a large selection of art materials. Small rooms include soft elements for children to read or relax after a school day. The space has also been decorated for Christmas and licensing staff and the administrator discussed how they include various holiday celebrations within the facility.
