General Comments

Licensing staff arrived at the facility to conduct a monitoring inspection. The children were having free play when I arrived, and they had just finished snack. The indoor play area is clean and bright with a good variety of resources for the children's play. There is a kitchen set, child sized chair and table, wagons and grocery carts, small accessories for the kitchen and loose parts in accessible shelving for the children, a comfy corner with books and stuffed animals, a rug, doll house and dolls, and blocks and rubber mats to climb and sit on. The colours are calming and there are examples of the children's artwork and family pictures on the walls.

The children gradually transitioned to outside play after picking up their toys, diaper changes and getting dressed for outdoors. The operator played the clean-up song, and the children all seemed to really enjoy the music and songs. The children are learning to take turns, wait, line up and dress themselves with help from the operator. They brought their water bottles outside and everyone put them on the deck. Playing together cooperatively and learning some independent skills are being modelled by the operator and she is very patient and kind as she helped them negotiate their wants with everyone else and the schedule of the day.

The outside play area is fenced, and the operator has added a music wall, tree stumps for sitting and balancing, a wagon and a balance bike to her wide variety of outdoor toys. She chased the children around and joined in their play and gave them rides around the yard in the wagon. After an hour everyone came inside, were diapered, washed hands and ate their lunches in their highchairs or at the child sized table. After lunch all the children had a nap supervised by the operator.

The parent board has all the necessary items such as the license etc., the child profiles are complete, Fire drills are being done, and the cleaning and maintenance check lists were all up to date. The operator is completing her curriculum training, and she is getting many new ideas for her center from it. The atmosphere is pleasant and calm, and the operator is always patient and kind with the children.
