General Comments

Monitoring inspection completed today.
A small group of children were in attendance.

The indoor play environment is welcoming and purposefully planned with an abundance of materials and invitations for children that are reflective of children's interests and community.

Opportunities for language and literacy development, math and science, dramatic and creative play, gross and fine motor development, construction and music are available throughout all areas and interest centres.

Educators were observed to follow the children's lead and extend learning. Children were interested in painting at the easel. As they painted one of the children was discussing his paint drips. The educator, observing this brought out a book and shared a work by Jackson Pollock. Together they talked about how the painting was created and they identified the different colours he had used.
