General Comments
Environments set up with materials and invitations for children to engage with. During monitoring inspection children from all age groups engaged in play in the indoor and outdoor play environments. Indoors, children are provided with opportunities for active as well as quiet play. Educators observed to be very positive and attentive to the children in their groups. Purposefully planned and documented program: Observation and activity forms present however were not recent. These forms are a good way to reflect on what activities are offered to the children and what they enjoy or are interested in and can inform planning for the next day/week. Having a written plan like this ensures that a variety of opportunities are provided for learning and exploration. Program manager shared that she is looking for ways to implement planning time for educators outside of time with the children to support them in documenting programming.
