32(1) An operator of a licensed facility shall provide indoor play area materials and equipment that are (a) varied and in sufficient quantity for the number and ages of the children receiving services at the licensed facility.	32(1)(a)	Oct 23, 2026
Comments: Licensing staff observed that the toddler classrooms require additional play resources to enhance the learning environment and support children's interests, development, and engagement throughout the day. It is recommended that a greater variety and quantity of age-appropriate materials be added to the classrooms to promote exploration, creativity, independent play, and learning opportunities across all developmental domains.
33(1) An operator of a licensed facility shall provide outdoor play area materials and equipment that are varied and in sufficient quantity for the number and ages of the children receiving services at the licensed facility.	33(1)	Oct 23, 2026
Comments: In the infant and toddler outdoor play areas, licensing staff observed that there was an insufficient quantity and variety of play materials available to support children's engagement, exploration, and development during outdoor play. It is recommended that additional outdoor play materials and equipment be provided to ensure children have access to a variety of meaningful play experiences that promote active participation, learning, and development while outdoors.

General Comments
Licensing staff arrived at the licensed facility to conduct the annual licence renewal inspection. Upon arrival, children were engaged in outdoor play activities. In the infant program, children were observed adjusting well to the cooler outdoor temperatures and were actively engaged in outdoor play experiences. Educators were seen interacting with the children in a positive and responsive manner, supporting their learning and development throughout the inspection. During lunchtime, infants were well supervised while eating. At rest time, some infants were sleeping in the designated nap room, while two infants were resting on cots within the classroom, with appropriate supervision maintained at all times. While observing the infant classroom during both indoor play and lunchtime routines, licensing staff noted documentation of children's learning displayed throughout the environment. Multiple learning stories were posted on the walls, along with paintings, artwork, and crafts created by the children. This documentation reflected children's interests, experiences, and developmental progress while celebrating their learning and participation within the program.

In one of the senior preschool classrooms, children were eating lunch and preparing for rest time during the observation period. Children were encouraged to independently clean up their lunch containers and assist with tidying their eating area before transitioning to their cots. Once all children were settled, the educator began reading a chapter book aloud, creating a calm and comforting atmosphere that supported children in relaxing and transitioning to rest time.

Licensing staff observed that the senior preschool classrooms contained a sufficient variety and quantity of play materials accessible to the children. The materials available supported children's interests and provided opportunities for exploration, creativity, learning, and engagement throughout the indoor environment. Children had access to a range of developmentally appropriate resources that supported play and learning across multiple developmental domains.

Licensing staff observed that the toddler classrooms would benefit from additional play resources to further enhance children's learning opportunities and engagement. It is recommended that a greater variety and quantity of materials be added to support exploration, creativity, independent play, and learning experiences across all areas of development.

In the infant and toddler outdoor play areas, licensing staff noted that there were not enough play materials available for children to engage with while outdoors. It is recommended that additional age-appropriate outdoor play resources and equipment be provided to ensure children have access to a variety of meaningful play experiences that support active exploration, learning, and development during outdoor play.

A review of children and educator files was completed. All files were organized and contained the required documentation in accordance with the Early Childhood Services Act and Regulation.
