General Comments

The group was finishing up snack and getting changed into swimsuits for a field trip to Killarney Lake today. 5 educators in total would be accompanying the group with lifeguards on site at Killarney. The educators provided a long transition time for children to finish snack, take their time to get changed and wait for others. One educator read two books to the group during the transition and children sat, listened and pointed out items during the engaging, expressive read aloud.

The educators gave many reminders of what items were required for the field trip sometimes asking individual children if an item was there's. The educators counted the children many times to ensure the right number of children were present and called out each child's name to take attendance just before lining up to leave. The children each wore a fluorescent green Y shirt for easy identification. One of the educators carried a backpack with a first aid kit, attendance forms and emergency contacts.
