General Comments

A renewal inspection was conducted for the preschool program during both the morning and afternoon.

Preschool children were observed participating in a variety of indoor and outdoor activities throughout the inspection. Indoors, children were observed during story time, singing songs with educators, creating butterfly artwork using sticky tape and glitter, and engaging in gross motor play in the gym. Outdoors, children were observed playing in the sand, participating in mark-making activities, looking at books, playing with baby dolls, cars, and trucks, and engaging in risky play opportunities by climbing and jumping from large tires. Educators were observed positioning themselves throughout the outdoor play environment to maintain active supervision and were observed interacting with children through play and conversation.

Children were also observed during snack, lunch, and rest periods. Educators were observed sitting with the children during meals and snacks. Educators assisted children as needed with opening food containers and packaging while encouraging children to complete tasks independently when able. During rest time, educators were observed sitting beside children and providing comfort and support while calming music played in the background.

The learning environments were observed to be arranged with a variety of open-ended materials that supported children's play, exploration, and learning. Materials were stored on low, open shelves and were accessible to children, supporting independent choice and engagement. Documentation was current and reflected recent activities and experiences within the program. Photographs of children and samples of children's artwork were displayed throughout the learning environment. Educators advised that the children currently have an interest in sensory play and The Grinch, which was reflected in the materials and experiences available within the classroom.

The following records were reviewed during the inspection: Incident logs, fire drill records, daily attendance records, professional learning records, a sample of children's files, and all staff files. Handwashing and diaper-changing practices were also observed during the inspection.
