General Comments At the time of the afternoon visit, one group of children was outdoors and the other group was indoors. Outdoors, children were using the play structure for climbing and sliding and were also using the swings. Educators were positioned throughout the outdoor area to maintain appropriate supervision and were observed interacting with the children as needed. Indoors, children were engaged in board games, laptop games, card games, and drawing activities. Educators participated in these activities with the children. The indoor environment was organized, with materials accessible and a variety of activity options available for children to choose from. The parent board, fire drill documentation, staff files, and child–educator ratios were reviewed and found to be accurate, current, and compliant.
