General Comments When the QAM arrived in the afternoon, she observed the younger group participating in outdoor play on the school's playground. Children were engaged in a variety of activities, including running, using playground equipment, and participating in gross motor play. Educators were present and provided supervision throughout the observation. One educator was observed taking turns pushing children on the swings. Educators shared that the children's current interests include colouring, drawing, outdoor play, Magna-Tiles, LEGO, and dress-up activities. The QAM then observed the indoor learning environment with the older group. One educator was engaged in a card game with a child, while another educator was preparing colouring sheets for the children. Several children were participating in a hockey game, while a small group was using laptops for educational purposes. Additional materials available to the children included board games, blocks, and art supplies, providing a variety of opportunities for play and learning. The parent information board, incident reports, and fire drill records were reviewed and found to be accurate and up to date.
