General Comments

Children were transitioning to lunch upon arrival of licensing staff. Children were observed sitting and reading books while being called to wash their hands and to then come sit at the table where their lunch from home was prepared for them.

Infants were finishing their lunch and had their hands and faces washed after eating. The infants displayed that they had a well-established routine, and all appeared content while displaying some independence. The infant educator spoke pleasantly to the children and allowed for infants to react and respond to her verbal cues and comments.

Children then transitioned to quiet time. The younger children laid on cots while music was played, and the lights were turned out. Rooms with older preschool age children did not bring out cots but children did engage in quiet activities for an hour.

Staff files were reviewed and were well organized, containing all required documentation.

Postive behaviour guidance was observed at all times throughout the monitoring inspection.
