General Comments

The preschool children were in the outdoor play space when I arrived. The infants were having some free play time in their room before getting ready to go on a walk. The infant educators were observed sitting on the floor playing and singing songs with the children.

While the preschool children outside they were engaged in a variety of activities including digging in the sandbox, driving the tricycles around building with wooden blocks and lego, marking with chalk and climbing through tires.

The educators were engaged with children, playing, cuddling, marking with chalk and singing songs.

The indoor environment is clean and organized. There are numerous learning stories posted in every classroom. The facility offers an inclusive environment as demonstrated by having materials and items in the rooms are labelled in various languages spoken by the children in the classrooms.

The educators work well with each other. They communicate what they are doing and how many children they are taking to the bathroom. While one educator was getting lunch set up the other educator read a story to the children. When the story was done the children went to the table to eat lunch.

Everything seemed to be running well during the visit.
