General Comments

The children were having snack and getting ready for outdoor play when I arrived. The facility is documenting through learning stories and candid photos, which are posted on the walls in the classrooms.

During outdoor play time the children were observed running around, playing in the dirt with truck and shovels, rolling tires around, balancing on tree stumps, climbing on the climbing structure and hanging out in the playhouse.

The Butterfly classroom is working on a science experiment making compost and planting flowers. The class has planted sunflowers, daisies and Zinnias.

During quiet time the 4- and 5-year-olds were observed playing with play-doh, magnetic tiles and barbies. A routine has been established throughout the facility as seen during snack and lunch time. One educator will take the children to the bathroom, reading a book, playing a game or singing a song while the other educator prepares the snack or lunch. This way the children can all eat together. During mealtimes the educators were seen sitting at the table talking to the children and helping them when needed. Everything seemed to be running smoothly during the visit.
