General Comments

The four-year-old group were playing with in a sensory bin for a melted snowman which consisted of cornstarch, water, gems and wooden sticks. This was followed up from a book, Sneezy Snowman by Maureen Wright, that was read earlier in the day. Other children in the class were sitting at the table drawing pictures.

The children in the three-year-old room were having some free playtime; some were sitting at the table putting a puzzle together, while others were playing with lego and plastic animals.

The afterschool children were just arriving when I entered their room. There was an invitation set up on the table for the children to participate in if they wanted to. They were making tree ornaments to sell at the craft fair next week. So far, they have made wreaths and wrapping paper for the sale. Children were also observed building with magnetic -tiles, lego and relaxing in the cozy corner.

After snack all the children went outside where they were observed playing in the sandbox, and piling the sand into one huge pile, rolling tires, playing soccer and ball hockey.

The educators were engaged with the children, playing games and sitting with them during snack time.

The facility seemed to be running smoothly on the day of the visit.
