General Comments

The Quality Assurance Monitor observed:

- Access to a licensed facility
- Child-to-staff ratios
- Daily activities that include both indoor and outdoor opportunities for physical activity
- Daily attendance records of children
- Child guidance

The Quality Assurance Monitor was on site for a monitoring inspection. During the inspection, the Quality Assurance Monitor observed outdoor free play activities. One educator was seen engaging in a discussion with a child who had thrown his cap over the fence. The educator asked the child questions to help him realize that he could choose other games to play instead. The educator remained calm and maintained a gentle tone of voice throughout the conversation.

Another observation involved an educator playing with a group of children, using small rocks to practice addition and subtraction.
