General Comments

A monitoring inspection was conducted for the preschool program during the morning.

Preschool children were observed participating in a variety of planned and spontaneous indoor learning experiences. Educators shared that the children have shown a strong interest in superheroes and had intentionally planned activities based on this interest. These activities included a superhero rescue mission and a "Hulk smash" activity, where children were invited to punch through tissue paper attached to a large cardboard structure to access the materials behind it.

The learning environment was arranged with a variety of open-ended materials that supported children's play, exploration, and learning. Materials were stored on low, open shelves, making them easily accessible and promoting independent choice. Documentation was current and reflected the children's recent interests and experiences. Photographs of the children and samples of their artwork were displayed throughout the learning environment.

The following records were reviewed: daily attendance records, a sample of children's files, and all new staff files.
