General Comments
When I arrived the school age children were divided into two groups. The first group was outside playing a game of "dungeon run" while the second group was inside finishing up snack and having free play. The two groups eventually switched , the group that was now outside was playing a very active game of "pokemon" while the group that just came inside were having snack, had a chance to free play and then started working on their magic wand craft! The preschool group was getting ready to go play outside when I arrived. Once they were outside they were observed playing on play structure/slide, playing in the treed area, digging, and collecting sticks. Upon closer observation, the educator was seen sitting with the children and counting all the sticks they found together! They were observed counting in English and French! The educators were observed being respectful, attentive and engaged with the children at time of visit.
