General Comments During the QAM visit, groups were observed returning indoors from outdoor play. Upon entering the building, all children washed their hands before transitioning back into their learning environments. Educators supported this routine by having children line up and take turns at the sink. After completing handwashing, children proceeded into the classroom with the second educator to begin lunch. During the lunch period, educators provided assistance as needed, including helping children open lunch containers and unwrap food items. Educators remained seated with the children and maintained engagement throughout the meal. Current classroom interests included insects, flowers, dinosaurs, and block play. Learning environments contained materials that supported dramatic play, literacy, block construction, and art exploration. The parent information board and fire drill documentation were reviewed and found to be accurate and up to date.
