General Comments

Children had arrived from school shortly before I arrived for today's monitoring inspection. When I entered the facility all children in both rooms were observed engaged in play in their activity of choice. In the larger room, children were observed tracing pictures, playing with various sized blocks, card games, several different groups playing Lego, with dolls and ponies and Beyblades. The smaller group of children were observed in the reading corner, while most of the group were observed picking out a craft to do together.

Educators were observed using creative ways to transition the children and keep them involved on the task at hand. One educator was observed creating a sort of silent fox/animal with his hand and talking through that to capture the children's attention and encourage them to speak quietly. The same educator was also observed playing a game with the children where he would sit on the carpet and "close his eyes" all while counting down to encourage the children to have the room cleaned up in a timely manner. The children were observed promptly cleaning up to surprise the educator and erupted in laughs and encouraging smiles when the educator finally "opened" his eyes and saw what an amazing job the children did at cleaning up. Please note that there was more than one educator in the room at this time.

All children finished off the day playing outside. Educators were observed partaking in all sorts of play while outside with the children.

A reminder that two licences are not to use the same outside play space at the same time.
