General Comments
When children arrived from school, they wash up for snack, use the washroom, and fill their water bottles. The children were eating snack on the sidewalk today while others were preparing for the woods by getting some sunscreen on. Several reminders were given for water bottles and the washroom while one educator involved the children in discussing the rules for the nature park. An educator did a safety check of the nature park before the children were allowed access. The children were familiar with this step and waited while putting on safety vests. The nature park is a large, wooded space roped off as the boundary and includes several houses, a shed, bridges, balance beams, and a mud kitchen with pots and pans. The children played independently within the nature park as the two educators supervised, walking around and responding to children's questions.
