Children were observed building towers, reading books, building with blocks, making holiday crafts, and making bracelets. While outside, children were observed playing tag, playing on the equipment, and swinging. The grades 3-5 children were observed entering the classroom and washing their hands before play. Children were observed eating their snacks and making homemade tree ornaments. Both rooms were arranged in a way that children could move freely between learning / play centers, there were ample supplies - materials, books, toys, etc. Positive child guidance techniques were observed, some of which included educators giving gentle reminders, educators using positive language, educators understanding children's development, and educators preparing the children for transitions.
