General Comments Inspector is onsite to complete the renewal inspection for the school-age children. Inspector observes the children arrive at the center excited for a Father's Day activity they have been planning with the educators. Inspector listens to the educators positively guide the children and prepare them for when the fathers are going to arrive. Handmade gifts that the children prepared, different activity station and donut treat stations are displayed throughout the center. An EpiPen observed onsite prompted a discussion with the administrator regarding the need for additional information from the parents about its use. During a review of child profiles, the inspector noted that one child requires an EpiPen for a health condition that is not a life-threatening allergy. The inspector recommends that the administrator obtain further details from the parents regarding the symptoms and specific usage of the EpiPen. It is also recommended that all children's files be reviewed to ensure allergy information is current. The use of Appendix 4 – Extreme Allergy Management and Emergency Plan from the Operator's Manual is suggested to support the annual review of life-threatening allergies. One EpiPen onsite was found to be no longer necessary, as the child in question is no longer affected by the condition. Regular use of Appendix 4 would help ensure such changes are reviewed and updated annually The ratio is respected during the renewal inspection.
