General Comments

Licensing staff conducted a follow-up inspection.

Throughout the visit, only positive child guidance was observed. Educators consistently used encouraging and supportive language during transitions and demonstrated child-led practices by offering children meaningful choices, such as deciding whether to have snack immediately or later. Educators also respectfully responded to children's interests by accommodating preferences, including offering to read a book at a different time when children showed interest in another activity.

Licensing staff can now recommend the program for renewal.
