General Comments

Monitoring inspection performed.

All children enjoying a fun morning with their friends and with the visitor from the church who stopped by to read some stories to the children. Children loved listening and participated by pointing to the pictures in the book and clapping their hands and following along with the song book and squealing with excitement. Educators engage with all children in playful conversation "there you are, you are very good helpers, good job, you show me how, thank you, almost, is it stuck, gently, help please, do you need help, circles, orange etc. Educators say words and use short sentences that children can understand, and children repeat words back. Educators also take children's lead and so after the reader left children decided they wanted to stay seated in chairs, so the educator taped paper to the table and children started marking with crayons. Educators speak to children by calling them by their names. Lovely positive interactions observed. Children are also encouraged to help with clean up by placing crayons back in the box after the coloring activity.

New living room furniture has been purchased and drums - the children were observed sitting on them and playing the drums. They really love them.

Administrative records were reviewed - attendance is tracked, fire drills are practiced, outdoor checklist completed, and incident reports are documented and signed off, so parents are aware. Lots of recent documentation is also posted which references the goals of the curriculum framework. Programming room is very inviting and organized with toys and materials that is easily accessible to the children.

Outdoor play not observed this AM due to the temperature, though licensing staff has observed children in outdoor play during past visits. The educator entertained and sang songs to the children while heating up lunches and changing bottoms. All children are going down for nap.

Educators were observed following appropriate hand washing procedures during preparation of lunches, changing diapers and before feeding the children.
