General Comments

The children were engaged in some free play activities when I arrived. The children moved freely from one activity to another. These activities included a pretend birthday party, drawing pictures, playing musical instruments and a tea party.

The operator constantly engages the children in play and conversation, following the children's ideas and interests.

Before the children got ready for the walk to the park the operator had a discussion with the children reviewing what they did that morning, asking what activity they liked the most. During this time the operator took notes on what the children told her.

There are a wide variety of materials for the children to learn and explore with,

The children are very familiar with the daily routine. On the walk to the park, they know where to stop to wait for the others to catch, staying on the side of the road and watching for traffic.

While at that the park the children were able to go sliding, dig in the snow with shovels and paint the snow with colored water.
