General Comments

QAM arrived in the morning to conduct a monitoring inspection.

Mini Twos
This was the children's first day transitioning into this learning environment from their previous classroom. Educators were focused on observing the children and identifying their interests to support future program planning. QAM observed children climbing, playing with trucks, listening to music, and looking at books. The learning environment contained a variety of materials and resources to support children's learning and development.

Big Infants
The children had recently transitioned into this learning environment. Educators reported initial observations of children's interests, including pushing objects during gross motor play, construction-themed dramatic play, emptying buckets, and observing trucks and cars through the windows.

Twos
QAM observed children returning from a visit to a local playground. Educators supported the transition into the learning environment, with one educator assisting children in removing outdoor clothing while another educator completed diapering and handwashing routines. Following the transition, children sat down for lunch. Educators reported that children's current interests included Paw Patrol toys, animals, and block building.

Mini Fours
QAM observed educators and children cleaning up the learning environment and preparing for circle time prior to lunch. During circle time, children were engaged and participated in discussions related to handwashing, the weather, the current season, and the days of the week.

Mini Threes
QAM observed children eating lunch before transitioning to quiet time. Educators reported that children's current interests included superheroes, cars, dramatic play, nature, and insects.

General Comments
Big Threes QAM observed children finishing lunch and preparing to go to a local playground. Educators assisted children with dressing for outdoor play while other educators engaged children in reading activities. Educators reported that children's current interests included frogs, spiders, veterinary dramatic play, trains, and block play. Child-to-staff ratios were observed to be in compliance at the time of the visit. Staff files, fire drill records, and the parent information board were reviewed and found to be current and up to date.
