General Comments

Only 2 children in attendance during my visit today.
Children were enjoying their morning. The Operator had an art activity for the children to finish. The operator takes the children's lead and introduces activities and engages with the children in a positive manner. Fun children's music is played during the morning routine. Lots of conversation and interaction. The Operator responds to the children's words and excitement - "really", "are you finished?" "not yet okay", "can you count with me", "silly, silly", "good job", "high five" and playful conversation is used when changing children's diapers". She gently reminds one child to wash their hands and the Operator is always mindful of children's safety when they test their limits while jumping on cushions. One child picks up blocks the operator made that has pictures of the families. They begin talking about who are the people and their names on the blocks.
Children observed eating lunch and then the children go for the naps. They nap in the family bedrooms in playpens. The Operator documents 15-minute checks and she also monitors children on her phone.
