General Comments

During the morning inspection, all child–staff ratios, staff files, and the parent board were reviewed and found to be accurate, compliant, and up to date. In the Ellis Room, children were observed playing with stuffed animals, drawing with markers, and using musical instruments. Educators reported that current interests include dinosaurs, cars, construction activities, and drawing on the chalkboard. The environment was well-supplied with materials to support art, literacy, block play, and dramatic play, and the room was maintained in a clean and organized manner. In the Fox Room, several infants were absent due to cases of hand, foot, and mouth disease. Children who were present were observed using the slide and playing with instruments. Educators noted that the group has recently shown interest in crafts and touch-and-feel books. The room was kept clean and orderly, with clear efforts to support sanitation and reduce the spread of illness. The observation of the Major Room took place outdoors in the designated play area, where children were engaged in playhouses, see-saws, trucks, and the mud kitchen.
