General Comments

All educators are using a planning tool which demonstrates a purposefully planned and documented program is occurring in the facility. The QA Monitor discussed with Educators and Operator how they can demonstrate that their planning responds to the capabilities, needs and interests of each child by recording their observations (in a notebook, on a web or using any type of open-ended planning tool). The QA Monitor will send some samples that the educators may find helpful.

The Educators maintain binders of learning stories for each child, which are located in the hallway so that parents may easily access them. The QA Monitor and Operator discussed the role of documentation in the classrooms; by placing some copies of documentation in the rooms, at the children's level, they will support children's memory and serve as a jumping off point for next steps in learning, as well as assist Educators to uncover new information through visible listening. Educators should review pages 6-7 of the CAT document for more information on documentation.
