General Comments The school-age children were all outside in the afternoon as they stayed in during the rain this morning. Children have been creating signs and artwork for a lemonade/artwork sale this week. Educators invited children to participate by providing a variety of writing utensils, paints, and different paper for creating pictures and signs as well as supplying dough and materials to create art pieces. Children had the opportunity to create artwork outside and the interest in nature was evident in their pieces. Children were spread out throughout the outdoor area. Some children were searching for slugs and other bugs while two children had set up a food stand offering their created items in exchange for a rock. There were a couple of puddles from this morning's rain that the children used in play lugging water with buckets, pots, and spoons. Children each had a water bottle and returned inside to wash their hands and get their book bags for snack. The large play structure has been removed from the school-age play area and there are upcoming changes to add to the areas. There were a variety of resources for children and educators were observed engaged in discussion and play with children.
