General Comments

When the QAM arrived in the afternoon, children were engaged in activities within the outdoor learning environment. Children were observed playing basketball, creating and practicing dances, coloring, and participating in free play. The educator shared that the children's current interests include competitive games, Gaga Ball, and tree climbing.

During observation of the indoor learning environment, the room was clean, well organized, and equipped with a wide variety of materials to support art, literacy, and construction experiences.

The parent information board was current and up to date. The child-to-staff ratio was observed to be accurate and in compliance at the time of the visit.
