General Comments

When I arrived educators and children were doing circle time. Then they danced and sang together. Then they read a book together about animals. The children were interested in the story and engaged.

Afterwards, they read a second book about sharing, the educator engaged the children in conversation about the content of the book such as unkind behaviors described in the book.

After book reading, the children were given the choice to pick a station and then went outside until lunch time.

Educators were engaged with the children, using positive child guidance such as gentle reminders when needed.

The natural small playground at the back of the building needs to be cleaned out and ready to be used for September.

Everything is in compliance; I recommend for renewal.
