General Comments

Licensing staff arrived to conduct a monitoring inspection. The children had just finished snack and were having circle time which consisted of two stories read to them by an educator and lots of participation and conversation from the children. The first story was "The Bear and the Star by Lola Schaefer" and then "My Trip to the Fire Station by Barbara Kearns" which the children chose, however they got tired of it and the educator did not try to force the activity but instead suggested that they could come back to the story at quiet time if they wanted to. The room was bright and clean with a variety of resources available such as Jenga, blocks, cars, dinosaurs, trains, animals and Doll house loose parts to name a few. The play areas were set up with a mat for driving the cars, a reading corner with books, the dress up clothes on a portable wardrobe, kitchen center, child tables and chairs etc. The educators were prepping for today's craft which was making arctic foxes as part of this week's theme of arctic animals. There were examples of the children's artwork on the walls and in the entry way in chalk drawn by an educator.

The children transitioned easily into playing outside although many needed the educator's help with toileting and dressing for outside. The outdoor play area has added a large shade sail, cut up tree pieces and a suspension bridge to the preschool outdoor area. There were balls, containers and tools for digging in the storage chest.

Staff brought their attendance forms and first aid kits outside with them. The staff files were up to date, and the parent board has all the necessary postings. The facility conducted a Fire drill this morning, and tomorrow is a field trip to take advantage of the District PD Day. All the staff practiced gentle, positive, pro-active child guidance with the children and helped the children resolve any difficulties or conflicts with each other in a fair and kind manner.
