General Comments
Upon arrival of licensing staff to complete the renewal inspection, the mixed-age preschool group was engaged in outdoor play. Children were actively playing in the sandbox, using materials such as shovels, rakes, trucks, buckets, and building blocks to create structures, including bridges. Within the outdoor area, a water barrel was available, allowing children to fill containers and engage in imaginative play, such as creating "soups" or "drinks," and mixing water with sand to form clay. Educators were observed interacting positively with the children, including joining in play and engaging in conversations about bugs the children had discovered. An outdoor craft table was also set up, offering children the opportunity to draw if they chose. Bathroom reminders were provided, with educators offering gentle guidance as needed. At lunchtime, children participated in tidying the outdoor space before transitioning indoors. Lunch was prepared and served at the tables, where educators sat with the children and engaged them in conversation about their favourite foods. Following lunch, children washed their hands and transitioned to rest time, laying down on their individual cots. Educators supported this transition by providing gentle reassurance while soft music was played. Children were appropriately supervised during the nap period. Upon waking, children transitioned to the tables
