General Comments

Children and their Educator were engaged in group time when QA Monitor arrived for the monitoring inspection today. The educator was inviting children's contributions and encouraging them to share their ideas.
The environment was set up with defined interest areas, containing a variety of materials for children to choose what they would like to play with during free play.
An invitation was also set up for children to stack cups without using their hands. Creativity, problem solving, and collaboration were observed as children used popsicle sticks, elastics and straws to stack the cups. The educator onsite spoke very respectfully to the children and valued and encouraged their process.

Ensure that group logs required under the COVID-19 recovery phase indicate the children and staff in the bubble group and not attendance. Recommend completing the logs at the beginning of the week and confirming them daily. Group logs would only change if a new child is enrolled or a child leaves the program.
