General Comments

The preschool aged were engaged in variety of sensory bin activities when licensing staff arrived. Kinetic sand was being used in a variety of ways. Some of the children were driving trucks and bulldozers through it, others were making pizza and hamburgers. There were tree cookies, rocks, glitter, snowflakes and numerous other materials for the children to explore and create with.

When it was time for outdoor play the preschool children wanted to go for a walk. The educators and took them down the street to the corner store and back. The educators were very attentive to the children, making sure they stopped and watched for cars when crossing the street.

The facility is clean and organized.

The children seem comfortable in the environment.

There is evidence of planned programming as seen with the weekly programing and learning stories posted on the walls.
