General Comments

A Monitoring Inspection was conducted this morning. This was Embrace's first Monitoring Inspection. All rooms were welcoming and well organized. Age-appropriate toys and activities were observed in each room (Infant, Twos, Preschool, School-aged). Children were observed both inside and out. The infants were observed in their classroom, during free play. The twos were also observed in their classroom, sitting at a table, playing with, and sorting animals. The 2's were also observed taking part in gross motor activities. The preschoolers were initially out for a walk but were later observed in the outside play area. The school aged children were observed playing outside. Several examples of documentation were observed in all rooms. Attendance records were accurate and reflected the correct number of children. Classroom schedules were posted, fire evacuation sheets were up to date, diaper changing procedures were posted, as well as allergy information, and contact information for the Quality Assurance Monitor and Inspector / Investigator. The outside environment contained several age-appropriate toys and activities. Positive child guidance techniques were observed by all educators – educators were observed offering choices, anticipating children's needs, understanding child development, and respecting the children's feelings.
