General Comments A renewal inspection occurred today. When the inspector arrived, the two children present were finishing their morning snack. The children then transitioned to the play area, where the operator introduced a homemade snowman game using large soft balls for the children to toss into the openings. The operator had set out a variety of open-ended play materials, including puppets, small wooden loose-parts pieces, and reused plastic containers with lids. Each child had an individual documentation book, and a live photo display was posted on the wall showcasing previous indoor and outdoor activities. The parent board contained all required documentation, including the license, contact information, and a coloring sheet the operator uses to track outdoor hours by coloring in flower petals. Fire drill records and written procedures were posted near the door. Attendance records were reviewed and found to be current. The children showed interest in fort-building, and the operator noted plans to expand on this emerging interest. Outdoors, a variety of materials were available, including shovels, a picnic table, a sound board, and a chalkboard.
