General Comments

A Monitoring Inspection was conducted this afternoon. Children were not present during today's inspection. Children were on an outside adventure with their educator. Quality Assurance Monitor met with both Administrators and discussed the school aged program.

The school aged classroom was observed. Several forms of documentation were observed - children's photos, artwork, and collages. Administrators stated that an author had recently been visiting the school aged group, and that the children had recently made their own books, with the help of the author. The administrators also stated that the school aged children had started "Reading Buddies", an activity where the school aged children would read to the 3-year-olds. Photos of the children baking were also observed.

Some materials and activities were observed in the classroom - magnets, building materials, arts & crafts and a foosball table. Other activities and materials were packed away, as it was Friday afternoon, and the children would be outside for the remainder of the day. Administrators showed QAM where the activities and materials were stored.
