General Comments Room 6 Children were observed completing their snack and transitioning outdoors. Educators implemented an effective and organized transition routine. As each child finished snack, one educator supported bathroom routines and handwashing, while the other assisted children with dressing for outdoor play. This system promoted efficiency and reduced wait times. Educators demonstrated positive child guidance strategies, including calmly reminding children to use gentle hands with their peers. The learning environment included a variety of developmentally appropriate invitations such as sensory play, cardboard construction materials, forest-inspired loose parts, and painting. Documentation was displayed throughout the room, highlighting children's learning and engagement. Both the child-to-educator ratio and the parent information board were accurate and up to date.
