General Comments
Completed renewal inspection today. The children were observed indoors and outdoors. Hand washing routines were observed. The educators were observed interacting and engaging with the children within their groups. There are extra staff on site (summer students), who have been helping to plan/prepare activities for the children. During today's inspection the children were observed freely circulating interest centers and outdoors, and engaged in activities of their choice. Today children were engaged in bracelet making, painting a log they found in the woods, playing with water balloons, playing volleyball, exploring the wooded area outdoors and playing board games. Topics of interests were identified within all rooms and reflected in the documentation (stories, projects, webs, photos, creative art, charts, posters, and binders that detail what the children have been doing) within each room. Some of the current and recent topics of interest included: space, arctic animals, vacation, the beach, wild life animals, and frogs. "Check out what we have been up to" binders have been created within each room that demonstrate purposeful planning. This is a great way to provide the children with opportunities to review/reflect on past experiences and learning and create a sense of ownership and belonging. Creative art area within the oatmeal room is organized and set up but requires paper (white and colored).

General Comments

Some new shelving has been added to the blue room, which is a nice addition to the space.
