General Comments
One room of children was outside playing while the other room was engaged in children's choice of play inside. Both rooms have reading areas with a large rug and a variety of soft materials such as pillows and stuffies. There is a bookcase beside the reading area to create a little comfy corner with lots of reading material for children. Two children were curled up in one room's reading corner with chapter books. There is a large selection of lego available, and children were able to play individually and with a group of children. One of the educators was down on the floor making creations with the children and talking about what they made. There was music playing in one room, as requested by the children and some children were sitting in another corner enjoying it. Children were also drawing and creating bracelets. After one group came in from outside, they ate snack and had a few minutes to play inside before heading to the gym or the play structure and then the pool for the afternoon. There were a variety of resources in the gym available to children and they also brought clipboards with plain paper to draw and quiz books. There are bulletin boards in each room with evidence of children's artifacts. Educators did regular counts of children, and an educator joined children in the hall if they were going to the washroom. The pool lifeguard went over the rules of the pool by asking children what they were as they gathered in the viewing area before entering the pool. The educators counted the children to ensure they met the ratio of one staff to 8 children while in the pool. One of the relief staff present today had their pool safety certifications.
