General Comments

During the annual renewal inspection, the children enjoyed outdoor play time for much of the afternoon. They practiced balance on the boards and other equipment, played with the soccer balls, drew at the outdoor art station. There was also a station with connectable blocks available.

The educator engaged in play with the children and spoke with them about their school day and plans for Halloween; she encouraged all children to participate in the conversation. The educator prompted children with reminders for transitions, such as the children from the earlier bus going with her to wait for the children on the later bus. The provided prompts for handwashing and reminded the children to use their labelled, designated cubbies and hooks for their belongings.

Activities available to the children indoors were varied and organized. There were art stations, quiet reading spaces, and lego, among other materials. Supplies were well-labelled and easily reachable by the children. I observed evidence of learning including learning stories and artwork on the walls. All postings were up to date in the centre.

I recommend this license for renewal.
