General Comments

Children enjoyed taking turns placing ornaments on their classroom Christmas tree. An educator explained a new classroom project to the children for the Christmas season that partnered with the Hartland Helpers. The children were invited to bring food donations to place under their Christmas tree to support local families in need.

Children collected their art activity from the day before which was based on the five senses, the children recalled this activity when asked by the educator and reflected on the different senses.

Bathroom routine took place prior to snack time, children washed their hands before sitting at the tables. Independence was encouraged as children chose their own snacks, the educators helped with opening packaging as needed.

The children displayed that they have established a strong routine which they can predict as they sat on the carpet, lined up and sat at the tables for their snack.

Water play, painting and playdough were available within the classroom and presented at the tables for children to select independently.

Positive behaviour guidance was observed at all times, all educators spoke to children with kindness and respect. The children were observed engaging in pleasant conversation with one another during their snack time.

Some children had a turn bringing a show and tell and enjoyed having the opportunity to talk about what they had brought from home with the other children. Children and educators had a discussion about the recent snowfall and read a book about snow.
