General Comments Upon arrival I was signed in. Each of the classrooms has a variety of age-appropriate materials and activities. The children were napping, or having quiet time, and they awoke while I was there. The children are very knowledgeable about the routines of their classrooms and needed very little prompting when transitions were happening, allowing them to go smoothly. After nap, the children have free play, then snack, and they then go outside if weather permits. I saw lots of documentation of children's activities in the forms of learning stories and pictures. Program planning is very evident. For example, I saw a learning story along with pictures showing the children planting seeds and then it goes on to show the progression of the plants as they grow. The children's art work was displayed in each of the classrooms. I saw positive child guidance by each of the educators, including techniques such as gentle reminders, positive reinforcement, and offering choices. Educators were quickly responsive to the needs of the children and the children appeared comfortable with them. On the day of my visit everything seemed to be running well.
