General Comments

Children were outside playing this morning. Music was playing for children as they played on the play structure, gaga ball, in the sandbox, and on the court. The shed was open with a large selection of resources for children to choose from. Each group had an educator with a bookbag filled with the attendance records, emergency contacts, and first aid kits.

There were a couple of minor bumps this morning that educators quickly attended to providing comfort, cleaning, and band-aids, if needed. Educators completed a record of any incidents to share with parents. Extra educators were present taking the children to the washroom, as requested. Educators did regular attendance checks ensuring they made a visual identification of each child. Attendance with a verbal response was completed before children went back inside for lunch.

Children washed their hands and visited the washroom when coming into the facility and after eating lunch. Children independently chose a table to sit at for lunch and educators gave reminders for children to remain sitting while eating to ensure safety. After children were done lunch, they found resources to play in the room as everyone was finishing up. One educator sat to eat with the children engaging in conversation. Individual tables were cleaned as the children were done and the floor swept. After everyone was finished, one of the educators provided a five-minute reminder for clean-up and the opportunity to complete a craft. The craft today was a beaded pipe cleaner dragonfly with a photo. All the materials were prepared for each table and educators suggested children could choose to make another animal, if they liked. A recommendation was made that information books about dragonflies could support this invitation.

Educators got down to the children's level to support problem solving between children when disagreements occurred. An educator visited the room to remind children to clean up after themselves in the washroom and reminding children to be respectful of janitors in the building.
