General Comments

Upon arrival to the center, I was screened, my temperature was taken, and I was logged in. I was then asked to sanitize my hands or to wash them. The center appears to be following all COVID guidelines well and all required COVID postings are up.

It is March Break this week and the educators planned activities with a different theme for everyday. Yesterday the children did science experiments and I saw the results of the experiments during my visit today. Today the theme was babies and I watched one activity where everyone took in a baby picture and everyone had to guess whose was whose. The children participated in this well and seemed to enjoy it. They have many other activities planned for the day as well.

The indoor space is divided into 2 sections to follow COVID guidelines for regular programming throughout the school year, but for March break the numbers of children are lower and so they can use the entire room. There are a variety of materials for the children and during free play I saw children participating in both individual and group activities. Some children were working on creating art, while others were building tracks and ramps for cars. Some children were playing board games, and some were playing with lego.

The staff interacted well with the children during my visit. The children appeared to be comfortable in the space and with the educators, and staff demonstrated respectful communication, gave clear direction, set clear boundaries, and gave gentle reminders to the children. The staff participated in activities with the children. Everything appeared to run smoothly during my visit.
