General Comments
On the day of my visit the children were acting out scenes from Frozen and dressing up for the parts. There are many props available in the classroom to support the children's imaginative play. Today the numbers are lower because the children are in the process of being IDA tested at school. Sylvia read the children a story during snack time about Hallowe'en because they are still interested in it. There are numerous examples of the Curriculum in action everywhere. The classroom has lots of interesting books, toys and educational resources. Sylvia has a very active and enjoyable program that reflects the group's enjoyment of learning and each other's company.
