General Comments When I arrived, some of the children were playing outside and some children were inside napping. I observed the children playing outside and they seemed to be having a lot of fun playing with buckets, shovels and containers in water and mud; they were exploring and the child-led activities were in line with the curriculum framework. The older children came inside around the same time that the younger children were waking from nap. Everyone had a snack before reading books. Inside, the play space appeared clean and had a sufficient variety of materials for the children. I saw that the children planted plants which were growing by a window, and there was children's art work, as well as documentation of learning, on the walls. The center is transitioning to more natural materials in the indoor play space. Loose parts have been added to the materials and the operator stated that the children enjoy them very much and it is interesting to see the things they are creating. During my visit I looked at all the staff files and all necessary documentation is included in each file. All of the staff's checks are also up to date.
